

Summative Assessment – One Place, Many Meanings

Overview

Students review the contents of the unit and demonstrate what they have learned about the place known as Tkúpa through a post-assessment activity with timeline cards and a summative assessment in which they imagine, illustrate, and narrate a day at this Tule Place.

Estimated Delivery Time

One 45-minute session
plus additional time to complete
summative assessment

Essential Question (EQ)

What is the history of Tkúpa (Echo, Oregon)? What new stories have we learned?

Supporting Questions

Why is studying the past important?

What cultural similarities are shared by all people connected to tkúpa/Echo?

What other stories about tkúpa do you still want to learn?

Success Criteria

I am learning...

...the history of Tkúpa (Echo, Oregon)

I will know I am successful when...

...I can place cards with past events in chronological order.

...I can draw a picture of an imagined day at Tkúpa and write a paragraph describing the place, people, beings, belongings, and activities shown in my picture.

Background Information for Educators

Review background information prior to teaching the lesson.

- > Read this Edutopia article about “Using Drawing as a Powerful Learning Tool” to prepare for the summative assessment assignment.
- > Read this chapter by Lummi educator, Michael Marker, about “Teaching History from an Indigenous Perspective.”

Materials Needed

Gather the following materials:

- > The whole class Know Wonder Learn (KWL) graphic organizer
- > Timeline Card Activity – 1 set of cards per table group (6 sets provided) Digital masters are available if you need to make more sets.
- > Slide deck to guide discussion and instruction
There is additional information in the “notes” section on the slideshows that may help you facilitate the lessons.
- > “Tule Place Reflection Book” pages 14-15
- > Classroom art supplies such as colored pencils and/or markers

Step-by-Step Instructions

Part One: Warm-Up (5 minutes)

1. Revisit KWL graphic organizer with the whole class. Emphasize and celebrate all of the learning that has taken place among classmates throughout the unit.

Part Two: Post-Assessment (20-30 minutes)

Talking Point: Do you remember the card activity you did at the beginning of this unit? Each card had an event from the past on it, and you tried to put them in order. At that time, it was quite tricky to figure out the order because you hadn’t learned about all of the events yet. You now get a chance to see how much you’ve learned and remembered by doing that same activity again!

2. Repeat Timeline activity

- Distribute one set of timeline cards to each table or group of students.
- Give students at least 15 minutes to arrange the cards in chronological order. Students should now know enough about the content on each of the cards to place them appropriately relative to one another without looking at the dates on the back!
- Once each group has come to consensus about the arrangement of their card “timeline,” take a photo as a documentation of post-assessment to compare to their pre-assessment timeline photo from the Unit Introduction.

Part Three: Summative Assessment Overview (10 minutes)

Now that students have reviewed the KWL graphic organizer and reviewed in groups with the timeline card activity, you will introduce the summative assessment to students

3. Talking Point

Now that we have learned about the story of Tkúpa you can answer questions about who, what, when, where, and why. Perhaps you can also now imagine what a day at Tkúpa might have been like.

What does the setting look like? What can be heard, smelled, felt? Who are the people in your imagined scene? What are they doing? When in time are you imagining? Are you there too? Draw the scene as you imagine it, then describe what you’ve imagined in writing.

4. Summative Assessment Instructions

- Walk students through the expectations for the assignment:
 - On page 14 of their Reflection Booklets, students will draw a picture of their imagined day.
 - On page 15 write a short descriptive paragraph answering important story-telling questions of who, what, when, where, and why.
- Provide students with any classroom art supplies available (such as colored pencils or markers) and provide sufficient time for them to complete their work.

5. Celebration of Knowledge

- Set aside time for students to share their “imagined days”...
 - Consider setting up a “gallery” where each student’s drawing, and paragraph are displayed so that students can walk around to each and see their classmates’ perspectives. You might even invite other classes or community members to attend the gallery walk to view your student’s work.
 - Another option would be to make a slideshow with pictures or scans of each student’s drawing and have students “present” their drawing by reading the paragraph they wrote or more casually describing their scene.

Assessment

Lesson can be assessed for the following:

- > Know Wonder Learn graphic organizer page 3 in the Tule Place Reflection Booklet can be used to evaluate the new information students have recorded in the “learn” column.
- > Tule Place Reflection Booklet pages 14-15

Support for All Students

Student supports include:

- > A scaffolded version of the booklet is available for students who would benefit from more structured guidance. This version is designated by the river icon on the cover page. [Website: For Educators > Printables]

Extensions

Student extensions include:

- > Consider including the vocabulary from this lesson in other spelling or language practice by using the words in your regular spelling lessons or by having students make flashcards to practice acquiring new vocabulary.

- > For older students, the writing portion of the summative assessment can be scaled appropriately for additional detail and length.
- > Consider adding another summative assessment that asks students to design a “Foldable” (see Dina Zike’s Reading & Study Skills Foldables) that serves as a brochure or travel guide for visitors to Echo, Oregon that tells the story of Tłúpa. You could even work with the Echo Public Library or City Hall to have these displayed for real visitors to your community!
